

The day after the fire

In the night of the 31st October, the villagers tried to put out the fire. They called the police and the fire department. When the fire was extinguished, the villagers were able to rest for a while. But Peter couldn't sleep very well. He had to think of Anna all the time and he even dreamed of her. The next morning, the villagers came together and cleaned up the burned up 'Corner Shop'. The village mourned a long time for Anna.

In another village near London, a stranger arrived in the night of the 31st October. He was looking for somewhere to stay the night. He knocked on a door and a woman opened it. The stranger was very good looking. He was tall and had dark hair. And he had strange green eyes...

© Lena Adam, 7c